Five students are the beneficiaries of the first distribution of college scholarships awarded by The Antonakos Foundation of Greenville.

The nonprofit foundation was established by friends and family following the deaths of all five members of the Antonakos family (Melet, Kim, Olivia, Mills and Ana) on July 7, 2013.

The Foundation was created to honor the family's memory by serving the community and giving scholarship funds to qualified Greenville County high school students.

Winners of an Antonakos Foundation Scholarship were Heyward Adams Brown (Texas Christian University) and Jordan Kennedy Gower, Clemson University, Blakely Scott Holcombe, Gregory William Stoffelen, and Jacob Bernard Wortkoetter (all bound for Clemson University).

The foundation awarded a total of $10,000 in scholarship funds.

Student applications were evaluated based on categories such as academic success, awards and honors, school involvement and activities, community involvement, athletics and employment, a personal statement, and references.
